Random Antiterrorism Programs Continue

When it comes to security, change is normal and should not be cause for alarm or concern. Random antiterrorism programs are implemented to remove predictability while safeguarding personnel and facilities. Have you ever been asked for more than one form of identification when entering an installation? Been checked for ID and driver's license at one gate and only your ID at another? Observed military working dogs inspecting vehicles in the PX/BX parking lot? Seen the guard force wearing full combat equipment and weapons without a change in the force protection condition? Noted vehicle inspections at installation and housing area entrances without any seeming pattern or rationale?

Please be understanding with security personnel if they are implementing a measure that appears inconsistent with what you have experienced elsewhere. The random nature of many measures that cannot, or need not, be executed continually serve to make us unpredictable. Remember to always stay alert, be unpredictable and report any suspicious activity to military intelligence, 421-2206/civ. 0711-729-2206.
